

MAR 10 1962

Approved For Release 2000/08/03 : CIA-RDP75-00001R000400080136-6

25X1A

The World Today

News

THE Central Congolese government is trying to buy four World War II B-26 bombers at a cost of $300,000 to beef up its small air force. Now the government pays commercial firms up to $500 an hour to ferry its troops around. The planes had been destined originally for Cuba.

•
U-2 Pilot Francis Gary Powers will get a warm welcome in the National Guard Armory at Big Stone Gap, when he return to his Wise, Va., home. There will be a reception and some speeches.